Blue Ribbon Grocery.

To My Friends and Patrons: I am striving for perfection in my business methods and am nearer it to-day than ever before. I never had such a complete stock and never such good values and withal I never had so strong a desire that the relations between my patrons and myself should be of the most cordial nature. I am not in business for this year only. I realize fully that it is only as I give perfect satisfaction to you and your acquaintances now, that success will attend me in the future. Nothing that interests you, however slightly, is too small to receive the very best attention of which I am capable. And nothing I can do to make you one of my satisfied patrons will ever remain undone. I say this honestly and would emphasize the fact that if any time you make a purchase from me that does not meet your full approval you are welcome to return it and your money will be cheerfully refunded in fact I would much prefer that you do so, as I am anxious that there should be no dissatisfaction, however faint, between me and my patrons. Hoping that you will favor me with your liberal patronage as you have done in the past I am sincerely yours S. P. JAMES
